

PRIDE AWARD

We as a staff have witnessed “unconditional” friendship and compassion from Emily Erickson during the course of her middle school years.

One adult within the school even commented, “If we could all be a friend like Emily, what a better world we’d live in.” In what could be viewed as a “me” society, Emily is selfless – concerned more about the needs of others than her own. She offers true friendship to those in need of a friend and willingly gives of her free time to serve others. With that in mind, we nominate Emily for the Pride Award.
